At Murder On Us the action happens all around you, not on a stage. Since the action takes place amongst the tables, all seats are great! Audience members are often caught in the middle as gunshots are fired, switch-blades are snapped open, or characters break into song.

The scenes of the play are alternated with the courses of the meal. During the dinner breaks, the actors mingle with the audience and entertain on a one to one basis. Best of all, the audience member who does the best job of solving the murder gets the mystery prize at the end of the night:
